Dance

Claudia La Rocco

At a certain point most people feel they should forgo the pleasures of trick-or-treating. Luckily, no such social pressures apply to Mexico's Day of the Dead, and Sunday at 6 p.m. you can join Mexican dancers on a processional from Union Square to an altar at ST. MARK'S CHURCH in the East Village. You can get to the church early and help build the altar or arrive at 7 p.m. for traditional dances. The activities are the start of six days of free, family-friendly events by Mano a Mano: Mexican Culture Without Borders. St. Mark's Church, 131 East 10th Street, (212) 587-3070, manoamano.us.

On Halloween the BROOKLYN ACADEMY OF MUSIC is presenting "MISUSE LIABLE TO PROSECUTION" by the JOHN JASPERSE COMPANY. But the only thing frightening about Mr. Jasperse's new work is how good it is likely to be. He is joined by the fabulous dancers Michelle Boule, Levi Gonzalez, Eleanor Hullihan and Kayvon Pourazar in an exploration of what it means to make productless art in a capitalist society. Fittingly, everything onstage has been begged, borrowed or stolen. Don't be surprised if you have to go to the same lengths to get a ticket. Wednesday through Saturday at 7:30 p.m., BAM Harvey Theater, 651 Fulton Street, between Ashland Place and Rockwell Place, Fort Greene, (718) 636-4100, bam.org; $20 to $45.

AMERICAN BALLET THEATER is also getting into the Halloween spirit with a revival of AGNES DE MILLE's take on Lizzie Borden, "Fall River Legend." If disturbed ax murderesses don't tempt you, there is much else to delight during the second week of Ballet Theater's annual City Center season, including Twyla Tharp's "Baker's Dozen" and Balanchine's "Ballo della Regina," both company premieres. And, oh yeah, some of the most thrilling dancers in the world. Tuesday through Thursday at 7:30 p.m., Friday at 8 p.m., Saturday at 2 and 8 p.m., next Sunday at 1:30 and 7 p.m., 131 West 55th Street, Manhattan, (212) 581-1212, abt.org; $27 to $93.
