Spare Times: For Children

'NO DOGS ALLOWED!'

Ahron R. Foster

Many recreational spots in America are family-friendly. But quite a few aren't friendly to certain family members: the toothy, hairy, supersalivating kind that happen to have twice as many legs as everyone else.

That's the crisis in "No Dogs Allowed!," a cheerful road comedy from Atlantic for Kids, the children's wing of the Atlantic Theater Company. Based on the picture book by Sonia Manzano — better known as Maria on "Sesame Street" — this 50-minute musical, directed by Josh Lewis, has many of the hallmarks of that television series: wry humor, rollicking songs, a sprinkling of Spanish and a multicultural neighborhood's warm embrace (in this case part of the Bronx). What it doesn't have is anything resembling a Muppet. The dog here is played by a guy (David Morris, above with Arielle Siegel), and therein lies much of the show's humor.

Mr. Morris is El Exigente ("the demanding one"), beloved pet of Iris (Ms. Siegel), the younger daughter in an eccentric, fun-loving Puerto Rican family. Mami (Nicole Spiezio) and Papi (Ethan Gómez) have planned an expedition to Enchanted State Park with the local deli owner, Don Joe (Josh Lewis); the newlywed lovebirds Aunt Carmen and Uncle Juan (Jessica Gurulé and Mike Smith Rivera); and of course the dreamy Iris and her pragmatic sister, Shorty (Chloé Wepper). Shorty is a Latina Cassandra, offering dire predictions no one listens to.

But Shorty's uneasy feelings are justified. Iris smuggles El Exigente into the car, even though his last picnic outing resulted in terrible, malodorous consequences to the back seat. Ms. Manzano has adapted her own work, with a sprightly, sometimes Latin-flavored score by Stephen Lawrence and lyrics by Billy Aronson. They have concocted a completely unbelievable but very funny plot in which the car breaks down, the family gets lost, and El Exigente, portrayed with panting eagerness, soulful eyes and fleet, flamenco-esque paws by Mr. Morris, consumes a dozen sandwiches and inserts himself into Carmen and Juan's romantic dancing without ever being discovered.

The jig — or rather the tango — is up when Iris confronts the inevitable “No Dogs Allowed” sign at the park. But with audience help (the ideal age range is 4 to 10) and creative division of labor, everyone happily learns that sometimes it's possible to have your picnic and your dog too. (Saturday and Sunday at 10:30 a.m., Linda Gross Theater, 336 West 20th Street, Chelsea, 212-279-4200, atlantictheater.org; $20; $10 for children and Atlantic members.) LAUREL GRAEBER

FOR CHILDREN

‘BABA YAGA AND THE PUMPKIN FAIRY’ (Friday through Sunday) There's nothing like a witch's spell to ruin a good harvest. In this musical by ONETIME Productions, for ages 3 to 10, Clara, helper to the witch Baba Yaga, opens a blue jar, with disastrous consequences. But with the help of other characters, the witch learns her lesson. Friday at 4 p.m.; Saturday at noon and 2 and 4 p.m.; Sunday at noon and 2 p.m.; Baruch Performing Arts Center, 55 Lexington Avenue, at 25th Street, (646) 312-4085, baruch.cuny.edu/bpac; $25.

‘BAMBOO!: BAM UNDER THE SEA’ (Saturday) The Brooklyn Academy of Music is trading haunted houses for shipwrecks in its 14th annual Halloween celebration. All the festivities will have a nautical theme, including arts and crafts, storytelling, carnival games and an oceanic moon bounce. The fun ends with a costume contest. From 4 to 7 p.m., in front of the Peter Jay Sharp Building, 30 Lafayette Avenue, at Ashland Place, Fort Greene, (718) 636-4100, bam.org; free.

BOO AT THE ZOOS (Friday through Sunday) From the woods of the Bronx Zoo to the waters of the New York Aquarium in Coney Island, every Wildlife Conservation Society park in New York City is offering a Halloween celebration. The Bronx Zoo and the aquarium are holding interactive attractions: Haunted Safari Adventure in the Bronx takes children through a bat cave, the belly of a snake and more in search of a lost species; Haunted Sea-Fari Perils of the Deep at the aquarium illustrates the oceanic food chain. Other highlights include a bat discussion and a search for “ghosts” of extinct animals at the Central Park Zoo; spooky shows with live snakes and lizards, presented by Nettie the Wildlife Witch at the Prospect Park Zoo in Brooklyn; and a Haunted Habitat and pumpkin picking at the Queens Zoo. Saturday and Sunday, except the Central Park Zoo, which is Friday and Saturday. Schedules: wcs.org; free with zoo admission; children in costume will be admitted free at the Queens and Bronx Zoos.

DIA DE LOS MUERTOS (DAY OF THE DEAD) CELEBRATIONS (Friday through Monday) The name may sound scary, but Day of the Dead is a far cry from Halloween night: this cheerful Mexican holiday welcomes the returning souls of loved ones. From Friday through Monday Mano a Mano: Mexican Culture Without Borders will hold festivities at St. Mark's Church, with altar building, dancing and workshops in creating sugar skulls, paper art, poetry and holiday bread. On Saturday from 11 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. El Museo del Barrio will celebrate. Daytime highlights for children will include puppet performances, a mask-making workshop, a mariachi concert and a costumed procession through Central Park. St. Mark's Church, 131 East 10th Street, East Village. Schedule and details: (212) 587-3070, manoamano.us. El Museo del Barrio, 1230 Fifth Avenue, at 104th Street, East Harlem.
